Monthly Comment

INFLATION, CONTRACTION, RECESSION - Behind us is the worst quarter ever for global bonds. Commodity prices saw the biggest price shock since the 1970s. Inflation in the U.S. and Europe is above 7.5% and higher than it has been in decades. Many investors who had been critical of bonds since the "taper tantrum" are finally finding vindication - it was bound to happen. But stocks also had a lousy quarter, with European markets in particular underperforming U.S. markets by the most since the financial crisis. Central banks have put themselves in a hopeless situation with zero interest rate policies and rampant open market purchases. They have to fight high inflation even though this will probably trigger a severe recession. The losses on bonds and equities hurt, but are still manageable, because the liquidity is still there. When the restrictive measures in hard dollars and euros reach the markets, the reckoning will be made. No one can predict how strong the effects will be and whether it makes sense to favor any asset class. Cash may be king, or consumption may be brought forward, because in the case of inflation, the latter is the rational thing to do.

Fund description

The Tungsten PARITON UI strategy aims to achieve a stable absolute return by combining several different asset classes in a multi asset portfolio.

The Tungsten PARITON UI fund considers only those assets that deliver an attractive risk/return ratio. To avoid a one-sided allocation, weights to these assets are assigned using a special risk balancing method. The employment of such risk balancing promises high risk-adjusted returns (Sharpe ratios) as the aggregate portfolio risk is managed very effectively. Due to the low risk nature of certain asset classes the fund may employ leverage in order to achieve a relatively constant level of volatility. The expected return of the strategy is 3%-6% p.a. above Euribor (1m).
