

Tungsten TRYCON AI Global Markets Dynamic

Monthly Comment

Against the backdrop of weak equity markets, the portfolio suffered losses in this sector, mainly from long positions in US indices, but also from trading in the Korean KOSPI. The strategy slightly mitigated the sector's contribution with gains from short positions in Chinese equity indices and trading in the Thai SET 50 index. Government bond futures made a positive contribution. The strategy was able to capitalize on the rise in German government bond yields in early March following the suspension of the debt brake shortly after the Bundestag elections, while it also benefitted from the correction in British Long Gilts. In currencies, the strategy profited from the appreciation of the EUR with a long position, while suffering losses of a similar magnitude from the rise in the AUD and GBP at the beginning of the month. Trading in US equity market volatility also contributed negatively, as volatility spiked towards the end of the month.

Fund description

The fund's objective is to provide absolute returns with a medium risk profile and low correlation to equity markets and other investments. The underlying trading models are based on Artificial Intelligence.

The Tungsten TRYCON AI Global Markets Dynamic pursues a systematic multi-asset long/short strategy. It uses quantitative models based on Artificial Intelligence to identify trading opportunities in the financial markets. Periodic re-learning leads to regular updates of the models. The investment universe comprises some 60 global equity, bond, interest rate and currency markets. In these markets, the fund can take both long and short positions using regulated, liquid and exchange-traded financial instruments. The portfolio is dynamically adjusted to changing market conditions in accordance with a strict risk management. The strategy is characterized by low correlation with traditional investments.

Performance attribution by sector

The sector performance attribution is intended to be indicative and to give an estimate of winning and losing components of the derivative positions in the fund. The results do not include fees/expenses or contributions from the cash/bond portfolio and do not add up to the aggregate fund performance.
